THE government observatory at Edmonton reports the thermometer 89 in the shade on Tuesday last Aug. 22nd.
JUDGMENT in the case of J. Doyle, for pointing a gun, was given yesterday. The case was dismissed. M. McCauley and Mr. Sutter, J. P's.

MRS. F. LEFONTEINE and three children arrived from Washington Territory on Monday's train and have gone out to their new home in the Vermillion country where Mr. Lefontaine took up a homestead this spring.
J. CARLTON, who wintered on the Peace River, arrived from the north this week with his furs and is registered at the Columbia. He is an old hunter, having hunted tee buffalo on the plains. He succeeded in shooting one wood buffalo this last season.
MESSRS Lennie and Conterais, charged with stealing, appeared before Inspector Snyder on Tuesday. Joseph Lennie, now imprisoned at Fort Saskatchewan was also brought up to appear with them on the same charge. The three were committed for trial.
THE police at Ft. Saskatchewan secured Mr. Paradis and took him out to the pine bluff where the square was supposed to have been found. After going in about three miles and looking around nothing was found. The police have spent about three weeks on this and the other incorrect story coming from that direction.
THE Young People's Society connected with the Edmonton Baptist church, holds its monthly concert meeting on Sunday evening next, at the usual time of public worship, 7:30 p. m., the subject of the occasion is, "Trials and Triumphs in New England and the Middle States." The program of the evening will consist of brief addresses, papers and readings on the above topic interspersed with appropriate service of song. A cordial invitation is given to all, old and young, to attend.
MR. RUSSELL, representing the Smithsonian Institute, who went north last year to the barren lands to get specimens of Musk ox for the museum, is reported by Mr. Secord to have encountered many experiences among which was a three days blizzard in which he had to lie rolled up in his blankets under the snow. He was successful in shooting 7 specimens 3 of which he got. In May he went down the McKenzie river into Peel river 1500 miles by canoe in the hope of striking a whaler that would carry him back to a port from which he could take a steamer.
DR. SELWYN, F. R. G. S., who has made all arrangements for continuing the explorations for coal oil in the Athabasca region, has returned to Ottawa where he will have samples of the various strata found at or about every 100 feet sent to him. In this way he will be able to superintend the work and know what is being done as well as though he were there himself. When the party are through boring at the Landing a test for natural gas will be made at Winnipeg. The city council are soon to pass a law sanctioning the experiment which is under the direction of a company, of which J. O'Connor is the promoter.
BEARS are very plentiful on the Athabasca just now. The river banks are covered with raspberry bushes and saskatoon trees which are very heavily laden with fruit this season. These the bears are very fond of and accordingly seek the slopes where they are most plentiful. R. Secord shot one fourhundred pounder on his way down from the north and Colin Fraser shot 7. Many others were seen. Their fur is of no value at this time of the year; but the flesh is excellent. The Indians of the vicinity are living high just now, most of them are near the river hunting and it is surprising how short a time a bear lasts them for they are great meat eaters.

THE two courts A. O. F. have amalgamated.
A STONE foundation is to be put under C. Gallagher's store in the course of the next few weeks.
THE lady representatives of the Dundee Courier, Misses Maxwell and Imandt left for the east by last train.

THE head of a mountain sheep brought from the Jasper Pass by Harry Anthony and presented to T. Lauder is being mounted by Mr. H. Martin.
A FAMILY of ten from Minnesota, two settlers from Kansas, one from Washington Territory and one from Colorado were the new arrivals by Monday's train.
THREE arrived on Monday's train from Menzies & Co. of West Troy, N. Y., a bell for the White Fish Lake Methodist mission, consigned to Rev. E. B. Glass of that place.
THE stock of drugs lately owned by Geo. Thomson were taken to Fort Saskatchewan on Tuesday where a drug store will be opened by W. Young for Bole, Wynne & Co., of Winnipeg.
THE lumber from the yard lately conducted by Mr. Osborne is being removed to the corner of Jasper Ave., opposite J. A. McDougall's store. Messrs Hetu & Dorais will conduct it in future.

REV. G. W. Dean left on Tuesday's train to attend the quadrennial session of the general conference of the Methodist church at London, Ont. He will be absent about six weeks. Part of the time he will be engaged attending the Northwest conference which will be held at Neepawa, Man.
W. E. BEACH, of Walla Walla Washington Territory; came in on Monday's train and spent Tuesday looking over the gardens around town. He says that the cabbages growing at Donald Ross's are fully larger than those grown by irrigation at Walla Walla. Mr. Beach purposes locating here and went out to see the Beaver Hill district on Tuesday afternoon.
MESSRS N. Lamberton and Wm. Worsop of Minneapolis, Kansas, together with Mr. Beach of Washington Territory and Mr. Grey of Oregon, drove out into the Beaver Hills district on Tuesday afternoon and will spend a few days looking for land. They are very favorably impressed with what little they have already seen of the country.
SEVEN bears fell before the unerring rifle of Colin Fraser, one of Edmonton's pioneers, while coming down the Athabasca river on his way down from Fort Chipewyan. The last one killed was near Athabasca Landing and created much sport before being finally killed. Bruin was wounded at about 200 yards and showed fight. Other shots were fired by the party but without effect any more than making it more irritable. It was not until a shot from Colin's gun passed under its shoulder that it yielded to its victors. Being a large one its head and paws were kept by a policeman who was with the party.
THE District Board of Health is in a quandary as to who should pay for the medical treatment consequent upon the isolation of diseased pauper immigrants here. They cannot tell whether the Dominion government is responsible for allowing these diseased foreigners to come here to be a scourge to the country and an expense to the populace, whether it is the duty of the provincial government to harbor them and pay for their medical assistance or whether the local authorities must bear the burden. A meeting of the board was to be held on Tuesday afternoon; but there was no quorum to decide the matter.
MR. GADSDEN, Dominion government immigration agent in Nebraska, arrived from Omaha, where he left a party of settlers, on last train. He is here to gather a few samples of grain and roots to show at the Nebraska fair and to assist immigration work. The samples of onions from Mr. Emery's garden and cabbages from Donald Ross's shown last year were considered prodigious by the people there. He desires to get similar samples this year as everything in that state is dried up, there being nothing but beets and stock for the farmers to depend on. Mr. Gadsden leaves in the morning for Schuyler, and will leave there on Sept. 18th for Edmonton with a large party of settlers.
FATHER LACOMBE addressed the town council last night on the subject of a general hospital for Edmonton, and in the course of his remarks said that as an old pioneer in this district, being here forty years ago, he noticed wonderful developments in the progress of the town and desired to see it continue to prosper. The requirements of the country, he thought, pointed towards the construction of a general hospital and he desired to know what assistance the town council would be likely to give towards the object. He did not appear there as the Roman Catholic priest, but as a citizen of the town of Edmonton. The hospital would not be a denominational one, but would be public and conducted in the public interests by the grey nuns, who would devote their services to this charitable work. The local doctors agreed to assist and encourage the institution, provided that no regular doctor was appointed and patients were allowed their choice of doctors. Patients, too, were also to be allowed their choice of ministers to administer to their spiritual welfare. The council will meet to-morrow night to discuss the question.

THE "Ontario House" South Edmonton, will be sold by auction on Friday of next week.
A special meeting of the town council will be held to-morrow night to decide on what assistance the town can give towards a general hospital.

FRANK OLIVER. — PROPRIETOR.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, AUGUST 23RD, 1894.

NORTHWEST ASSEMBLY.

REGINA, August 13th.

Haultain laid on the table a return of all correspondence in reply to resolutions of the assembly passed at its last session. Also the report of the chief license inspector for the Territories for the past year.

Oliver presented a petition from certain friends of temperance in Moosomin asking for prohibition of the liquor traffic in the Territories.

Knowing asked if the executive committee had had any correspondence with the government of Canada respecting discrimination in railway freight rates in the Territories and if not and if it was the intention to enter into any such correspondence.

Haultain replied to the first part of the question "no," and to the second part "yes."

Oliver moved the first reading of a bill to amend and consolidate as amended the ordinance providing for a vote by ballot in elections to the Northwest assembly.

Oliver moved the first reading of a bill for the abatement of nuisances in the Territories.

Wilkin's bill to prohibit fast driving over bridges of over 20 feet in length under control of the Northwest government was considered in committee of the whole, but was left in committee for further consideration.

TUESDAY, August 14th.

Davidson from the municipal committee reported the consolidated municipal bill, and the bill was ordered to be printed.

Oliver presented a petition from members of the congregation of the Methodist church at Medicine Hat asking for the prohibition of the liquor traffic in the Territories.

Betts asked if the whole or any part of the public accounts for the year ending August 30th 1894, would be brought down during this session.

Haultain replied that the accounts should not be made up to be brought down until they were closed on August 31st. Unless the house sat longer than was otherwise necessary it would be impossible to prepare and present the accounts after that date. At the same time every information would be given members on any points that they might desire.

Haultain laid on the table correspondence respecting the Territorial exhibit at the World's fair.

Insinger introduced a bill to amend the ordinance of '92 granting the Manitoba Northwestern railway exemption from taxation on land and property in school districts.

Neff introduced a bill to amend the agricultural societies ordinance by providing specific aid to agricultural societies.

Oliver moved the second reading of the bill for the abatement of nuisances in the Territories. The bill was practically the revival of the unincorporated towns ordinance which was repealed at last session in favor of the present ordinance bearing the same name. In many cases the provisions of the old ordinance were necessary where the provisions of the new ordinance could not be made to apply. The idea was that wherever dwellings, or a sufficient number of dwellings were situated closely together that the acts of the residents might cause nuisances or danger to each other, special provision should be made for compelling the abatement of that nuisance or danger, by legal process. The wording of the present bill was quite different from the former ordinance but the ground covered was practically the same, except that most of the provisions of the present bill applied to a collection of five dwellings, while the former ordinance did not apply to anything less than a collection of 20 dwellings. The only new provision was one compelling the burial or burning of dead animals wherever any such by reason of being diseased or by decay had become a nuisance to the public.

The second reading of the bill was agreed to and it was considered in committee of the whole.

Oliver moved the second reading of a bill to provide for the taxation of land in the Territories. The bill was practically the same as that introduced by himself last year and rejected by the house. It was reintroduced at this session in the hope that even if it were again rejected its principles and objects would be brought as prominently as possible before the notice of the electors at the coming elections for general discussion and possibly subsequent action. The necessity for the provisions of the bill was simply the necessity for more money than was at present available or appeared likely to become available for the improvement and development of the country. In some districts where population was rapidly increasing the demand for road improvement was out of all proportion to the means available, while in other districts an increase of the water supply was necessary if the present population was to be retained. Expenditures in these directions would directly increase the value of the lands throughout the territories whether occupied or unoccupied to a greater extent than it would the personal property and therefore the bill provided that the land, as land irrespective of its present value and in respect only of the benefit that it might be expected to receive, should bear the whole burden of the tax proposed. This was the simplest possible form of the single tax, a tax half a cent an acre or half a cent per town lot of less than an acre. This could be very much more easily and cheaply assessed and collected than any tax levied according to values, and was based on the principle already adopted in the case of the frontage tax in towns and the tax for road improvements in statute labor districts. Any tax in itself is naturally undesirable. It should only be levied where the necessity for it exists. The people in the district which he represented were recognizing the necessity of a tax of some sort by forming themselves into statute labor districts. But as a statute labor district could only be formed where there was a considerable amount of settlement and where settlers were willing to tax themselves it followed that where settlement was sparse or settlers were unwilling to help themselves there was no taxation, and therefore the men who were helping themselves were also helping others who declined to help either themselves or others. This was not fair to the men who wished to help themselves and put a premium on their not doing so where the effort should be to put a premium on self help. This argument as applied to actual settlers applied with tenfold force to speculators holding in many cases large areas of land from occupation. If within a statute labor district it was difficult or impossible in many cases to collect the taxes assessed against such land, and if outside, the land so held was a hindrance to the formation of such districts, while at the same time it received the benefit of the taxes paid by the statute labor districts and the general expenditures made by the Northwest government. The tax proposed was so light that the actual settler would scarcely feel it, but the corporations holding large areas of public lands for speculation would be made to contribute a substantial amount for the improvement of the country. Provision was made that taxes levied within a statute labor district or municipality be handed over to the district or municipality for expenditure less a percentage to cover cost of collection. This would provide a small cash fund to assist in carrying on the business of the statute labor district; something that was not now provided for and without which the district was almost unworkable. The remainder of the money raised would go to a certain fund for public works only to be appropriated for specific works by vote of the assembly. In its form the bill had been confined as closely as possible to a statement of principle. It had not been burdened with confusing details. If the assembly would agree to the principles, the details could be provided or amended in committee.

McKay believed the country was too young for such a measure. It would break down one of our best arguments to induce immigration, namely that we had no direct taxation. It was unworkable in that the largest land holder in the country, namely the C.P.R. could not be taxed, and that it was also impossible to reach some other large landed corporations.

Magrath said that the direct taxation proposed would retard immigration and frighten capital. Our principal immigration at present was coming from the States. One great reason why the people were leaving there was because of the high taxation. Railway companies holding land in large tracts were not speculators in the usually accepted sense of the word. They had been induced to develop the country by constructing the railway by the offer of these land grants. At the present time they could not dispose of them, and to make them pay taxes on these lands would be hardship to the companies now here and would deter other companies from investing.

Betts said it was not a question as to whether the proposed tax was large or small, but was it right. He believed that the amount raised would be consumed in cost of collection. He would be willing to make the organization of statute labor districts compulsory, but he considered a general land tax premature. None of the provinces had enacted such legislation. To meet the shortage of funds the executive should have impressed more strongly on the federal government the financial claims of the Northwest.

Haultain agreed with some of the propositions contained in the bill but must oppose it on account of the greater number with which he did not agree. He did not look upon it as a true single tax bill. The single tax was a tax on land values. The proposition of this bill to tax land without regard to its value was, he thought, utterly unfair. The tax would be costly to collect and a great part of it in the unoccupied sections of the country would be uncollectable. It would only amount to $108.80 per township if every quarter section were taxable. On a million acres it would only be $5,000. The tax would be borne chiefly by the actual settler. He believed in helping people to help themselves and would approve of compulsory statute labor.

Insinger said he was in favor of the bill and for fear of being regarded as censurable for supporting it he would explain himself. If we could not get immigrants into the country without inducing or seducing them we would be as well without them. The principal reason he had for supporting the bill was that it brought on the issue as to whether or not land corporations could be taxed. We had been sending to Ottawa year after year representatives respecting these corporations. We were in earnest in so doing! The lands of the C. P. R. had in many instances been transferred to other companies and yet had avoided taxation. The sub-corporations were not contributing one cent to the revenue, but were shirking the responsibility in every way. This bill afforded us a basis of future operation against these and he therefore felt justified in supporting it.

Dill, Page and Brett opposed the bill. Mowat supported it on the ground that it was a single tax bill and in the desirable direction of self help.

Clementson opposed it as a deterrent of immigration and as being introduced at an inopportune time owing to the partial crop failures in some part of the Territories.

Jelly thought the bill well intended and could not agree with many of the arguments advanced by its opponents, but as a tax bill he considered it premature and would vote against it. Our aid from Ottawa should reach its proper limit before we resorted to direct taxation.

Oliver in closing the debate said that on the question of the influence of the bill on immigration it was for the house to decide whether having induced the immigrants to come here it was better to allow him to suffer hardship and inconvenience without relief or put it within his power to help himself. The general difficulty of collecting this tax here could be no greater than the difficulty of collecting a like tax in British Columbia or in the unsettled parts of the adjoining states. Regarding the companies who now avoided taxation through a secret understanding with the Dominion government, the only power that could possibly cause the dissolution of that compact and bring those lands under taxation as justice required, was the Northwest government armed with an ordinance such as the present. Through it, the case would be presented to the government in this way: Either adequate funds should be provided for proper expenditure for public purposes in the Northwest or these people who were at present improperly under the protection of the government would be made to bear their fair share of the public burden, not leaving the whole of it on the actual settler as at present and as some of the opponents of the bill had actually proposed.

The second reading was defeated on the following division: Yeas—Mowat, Insinger, Oliver, Prince, 4. Nays—Betts, McKay, Myers, Brett, Knowlton, Magrath, Dill, Page, Haultain, Neff, Wilkins, Boucher, Clementson, Davidson, Lineham, Clinkskill, Sutherland, Jelly, 18.

WEDNESDAY, August 15th.

Jelly enquired of the executive why accounts for labor performed on public works during the past month remained unpaid. When the work was done the money should be paid promptly.

Haultain replied that the funds due from Ottawa since June 30th had not been placed to the credit of the Northwest government by order in council at Ottawa. Until such order in council was passed, the Northwest government could not draw on the money that had been voted. As soon as it was passed, all accounts that had been received and certified would be paid forthwith.

Insinger introduced amendments to the liquor ordinance making it an offence for any person to be in a bar room during prohibited hours.

Insinger introduced a bill amending the statute labor and five districts ordinance.

Tweed introduced a bill respecting deputy clerks and deputy sheriffs providing for a sub-judicial district with deputy sheriff and deputy clerk at Moose Jaw.

Oliver moved the second reading of the bill amending and consolidating as amended the election ordinance. The bill was chiefly a consolidation for the purpose of convenience at the coming general election. No amendments of principal had been introduced since the bill was first passed. The amendments of the details was chiefly in the line of making clearer as they stood rather than altering in any way the several provisions affected. We hope that every member would feel the individual interest in the bill and give his best attention to its provisions with a view to improving them in all particulars. The ordinance would soon be put to the most severe possible test and it was to the interest of every member who was to a certain degree responsible for the provisions contained, to see that it was so completed as to stand the test.

The second reading was agreed to without a division and a large number of sections considered in committee of the whole.

THURSDAY, August 16th.

Jelly asked if the executive committee had recommended any amendments to the animal's contagious disease act. He understood that the Dominion act dealt with the cases of cattle, sheep and hogs, but did not touch that of horses. The assembly had been dealing with the question of glanders in horses for years. The Dominion should deal with horses on the same footing as with cattle and compensate for the loss occasioned by the destruction of the animals.

Neff in reply said that the executive committee had not communicated with the Dominion authorities on the subject. The assembly at last session had voted a large sum for expenditure in the suppression of glanders.

Knowing moved that whereas it is supposed that the Canadian Pacific Railway is discriminating against the Territories in the matter of Railway freight rates: And whereas a Departmental enquiry is to be instituted by the Dominion government into this matter: Therefore be it resolved that the Executive Committee of this house be requested to collect all available evidence and, if necessary, otherwise assist in placing the people's side of the question as fully as possible before such commission, and made a lengthy speech in support.

Davidson and Betts also spoke.

Haultain said the executive committee had intended to take the matter up and had already done something along the lines suggested but would be glad of the authorization of the house, through this resolution in case any expenditure might be necessary.

The motion carried without a division. Davidson introduced a bill to amend the ordinance respecting noxious weeds.

Mowat moved for a return of the expenditure on the steam well boring machine furnished to the Wallace district.

Prince introduced a bill to amend the ordinance respecting lien receipt notes, so as to require an adequate description of the article under lien to be registered.

Page moved for a return of the fees collected by sheriffs and clerks of court throughout the Northwest.

Page introduced amendments to the prairie fire ordinance.

Neff moved for night sessions when business was in hand.

The bill to amend the brand ordinance passed a third reading.

Insinger's bill to amend the exemption from school taxes granted the Manitoba Northwestern railway company in 1892, was read a second time.

McKay had opposed a similar bill last year, but owing to changed conditions he would support this bill.

Insinger's bill to amend the liquor license ordinance was read a second time.

Insinger's bill to amend the statute labor and fire district ordinance was read a second time. The mover remarked that since last session the greater number of the statute labor and fire districts organized in the Territories had been in the district he represented.

Tweed's bill to constitute Moose Jaw a sub-judicial district was read a second time.

The bill for the abatement of nuisances was passed through committee of the whole.

A number of clauses of the bill respecting elections were considered in committee of the whole.

John O'Connor, who is the promoter of a company for making tests for natural gas and its utilization in the city, has made arrangements with the party now boring for petroleum at Athabasca Landing to commence operations this fall. The council is to be asked to extend the period within which the tests are to be made, and the board of works will request the city solicitor to prepare the necessary resolution or by-law so that it can be dealt with at once.—Nor'-Wester.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—Great excitement prevails at Cokato, Minn., over what is pronounced by doctors to be a case of Asiatic cholera in the family of Eric Erickson, three miles east of that place. The man was taken sick and in less than 15 hours turned partly black and died in convulsions.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—The first of the fall excursions to Manitoba and the Northwest, left via North Bay tonight. It was very heavy. Fully five hundred people, mainly young persons from various parts of Ontario, were carried on the train which consisted of eleven coaches. The party goes all rail in two sections.

Mrs. Emma Shaw Colcleugh should soon be back from her trip to the almost unknown lands of Northwest Canada. Before she went away she said that she would probably give some illustrated talks about her trip on her way from Edmonton to Winnipeg, and her many friends and admirers are impatiently waiting to see her and hear all about her explorations.—Nor-Wester.

At the recent promotion examinations a Moose Jaw child answered thus, to the question "Sketch the life of Sir John Macdonald": "Sir John was the first Governor-General of Canada; he died in 1812 at the Battle of Cat Knife, fighting against Montcalm, an Indian chief, who was leader of the first Reil rebellion."

CALGARY, Aug. 15.—Francis Jerry, a boy of fifteen, was found dead to-day on a trail near the banks of the Bow river, four miles from here, with a cut, like the wound of a stone, on the forehead. Coroner Porter and a policeman brought the body to the city this afternoon. A shepherd named McDonald was arrested on suspicion. McDonald is a nephew of millionaire McDonald of Montreal, and stated that the blood stains on his hands and clothes was due to a wounded finger. The jury at the inquest returned a verdict of "death from falling off his horse while riding."

Mr. W. Hodgins, M.P. for Carleton county, who has been on a short visit to Mr. Roxburg, of the north fire hall, left this morning for Rosenfeldt, where he will join the G. N. for Grand Forks. He will take a general tour through Dakota and Southern Manitoba and draw comparisons between the two countries. He will return in about a month and then proceed west to look over the Edmonton and Prince Albert districts. Mr. Hodgins is well known in the House of Commons as one of Dalton McCarthy's staunchest supporters.—Winnipeg Tribune.

CALGARY.

The verdict of the jury empanelled to-day at the inquest of James Christie, who was found dead on the trail about two miles from his ranch north of Calgary, on August 10th, was that the deceased had come to his death by falling from his buggy, while on his way home on the preceding evening. The deceased's neck was broken. There was no mark of violence on his person, but when found he appeared to be lying where he had fallen head foremost to the ground. Near by there was a large gopher hole and the track of a buggy wheel passing over it. His horse and buggy were found standing at his corral in the morning. Mr. Christie came here about 1884 and engaged in ranching in company with Major Stewart, who, like himself, was an old Ottawa boy. Subsequently he dissolved partnership and continued the business by himself with good success. Much regret is expressed at Mr. Christie's sudden end, as he was always known as a sober, industrious and honorable man. He had reached the age of 65. His brother from Pincher Creek was telegraphed yesterday and arrived to-day, and will take charge of the remains.

CAME NINE HUNDRED MILES.
R. Secord, fur trader, arrived from Fort Resolution, Great Slave Lake, on Tuesday, after an absence of nearly four months.
Leaving Athabasca Landing on May 14th
the trip down the river to Ft. Chipewyan on Lake Athabasca was accomplished in eighteen days. Ft. Chipewyan is an old Hudson's Bay fort, headquarters for the Athabasca district. It is also headquarters of the R.C. mission and the see of Bishop Giroud. Scarlet fever has been very prevalent there this spring and many deaths are resulting from it, especially among the children. Ft. Smith was reached on June 20th. This is the head of navigation on Slave river for steamboat traffic. Owing to the rapids a portage of sixteen miles has to be made. This the Hudson's Bay Company accomplish by means of oxen. Ft. Resolution on Great Slave Lake was reached on June 24th. This is the last fort in the Athabasca district. It is a centre for the Indians coming from Buffalo river, Hay river, Providence and the Yellow knife districts. The H. B. Co. S.S. Wrigley from Ft. Simpson on the Mackenzie river reached Ft. Resolution on June 25th, the earliest date on record, it very often being July before it can get through the ice. The Wrigley then went on to Fort Smith where, as before stated, the cargo is portaged sixteen miles and put on board the S.S.
Graham. It is then taken to Ft. Chipewyan put on board the S.S. Athabasca and brought to the Landing. The Wrigley departed a few days later for Peel river and made the round trip between there and Ft.
Resolution in four weeks.
The musk ox hunt this year has been a failure. The animal is getting scarce, which coupled with the difficulties experienced in its capture is not at all surprising. Living as it does in the barren lands, where food and fuel have to be taken in by hunters, where there is no habitation and no timber,
where rocks, lakes and deserts intercept the hunter, it is a spot for adventure and exploration only and is a dangerous country to travel in. The musk ox, unlike the elephant, polar bear, the rhinoceros, and other rare animals, has never been brought alive into civilization. The zoological societies and menageries of the world know it not. Very soon it will be an extinct animal and the few stuffed specimens found in museums will alone give to the world an idea of this animal's lifelike appearance.
Very few hides were taken this winter.
Not half as many as last season, which may be due to the fact that the animals are getting thinned out or else that hunters have had to go further into the barren lands to find them. Among the Chipewyans the soul of the musk ox is deemed a god, and for this superstitious reason the Indians would not assist, nor would they permit a solitary animal to leave the country alive.
Mr. Secord met Gordon Cummings and Mr. Munn at Ft. Resolution. They arrived there on June 6th on their way to the barren lands to shoot musk ox, expecting to be absent about six weeks. Gordon Cummings will return this fall, but Mr. Munn will winter at Ft. Simpson. Another adventurer who has shot every other kind of game and was on his way to the barren lands hoping to return able to tell his friends he had seen and shot the musk ox was Mr. Maltuner, of Spokane, Wash. His companion upon his boat passing down the Athabasca rapids, lost all his provisions and outfit and had to return. Mr. Mal-tuner has one Indian with him and may probably winter there. There is still a good deal of ice in the north end of Great Slave lake, through which parties going to the barren lands must go. This is the best time of the year to reach that country and see the musk ox; but the skins are not in condition for preserving now.
The catch of other furs has not been equal to last year or precedings years.
Only nine wood buffaloes were killed and the band, which is now the only band on the continent, is dwindling down to small proportions, perhaps 150 all told. They are so wild that when shot at they are said to run for two or three days without stopping, breaking everything down before them. To follow them up is impossible. The catch of beaver, too, has not been up to the average;
so with other furs, while the black and silver foxes are scarcer than ever.
Mr. Secord left Ft. Resolution on the return journey July 7th. The crops at the Mission there were looking excellent, especially potatoes and barley. There had been no summer frost, and this 900 miles north of Edmonton. Wheat is also grown there. The English church mission in charge of Rev. Mr. Spindloe, is putting up a new church, as also is the R.C. mission.
He reports the cariboo and fish plentiful
and no starvation among the Indians.
On their way down they noticed the building of a new steamer at Chipewyan for the R. C. mission which is intended to travel on the Peace river, Athabasca river and Slave river as far as Ft. Smith. The "St. Alphonse," built at Ft. Smith, recently condemned by the steamboat inspector, and to remedy which Capt. Boyd went north last week, will make a connecting link of steamboats for mission work on the great lakes of the west unsurpassed in any mission field in the world. At Ft. Smith there is also a large saw mill. Coming down the Athabasca, with its 100 miles of
